

1. Resound Nexia 9

The Resound Nexia 9 is a great option for patients who want a small, lightweight hearing aid that can cover mild to severe hearing losses. It is one of the smallest rechargeable hearing aids available right now. With the highest water and dust resistance ratings, it is perfect for the Florida weather. Compatible with iPhone and Android devices, you can stream calls and music directly to your ears. In addition, it will be compatible with Auracast, which is set to release in the coming months. This will allow anyone with an Auracast-enabled hearing aid to tune into public broadcasts, concerts, and movies. The Nexia 9 is a great option for people with any lifestyle.

2. Oticon Intent 1

The Intent 1 is the newest offering from Oticon, a well-known company that has been in the business of helping people hear better for over 120 years. The Intent features a research-backed deep neural network to help you hear better in all listening situations. With an accessible and easy-to-use app that works with both iPhone and Android, you can control how you want to hear. With 20 hours of battery life and a charger with a built-in power bank, you'll never have to worry about carrying hearing aid batteries again.

3. Signia Charge-and-Go SP X

For patients with more severe hearing loss, the newest behind-the-ear (BTE) hearing aid is an excellent option. With the ability to be fit with a dome or custom earmold, these hearing aids are able to provide access to sound for even severe hearing loss. With a rechargeable lithium-ion battery that lasts up to 61 hours on a single charge, you'll never have to worry about running out of power when you need it most. These hearing aids also include a telecoil, so you can be in the loop during religious services, theater performances, or any other place you find telecoil services.
